

We feel that the FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. Any rule the FCC passes should respect the State's rights to enact more stringent requirements. With Indiana's current Telephone Privacy law, we no longer have to screen our calls at home to weed out unwanted telephone solicitations. We used to receive 2 to 3 a night with at least 1-2 "hang-ups" on our telephone recorder from during the day. We now get maybe 1-2 soliciations and/or "hang-ups" a week on our recorder. Solicatations that we do receive are organizations with which we have previous contacts with. Please do not do anything to weaken Indiana's Telephone Privacy act which is working just fine. This act was one of the few acts of our legislature that actually works as it was planned.
